ABOUT THE INTERNATIONAL ASSOCIATION FOR THE STUDY OF SEXUALITY, CULTURE AND SOCIETY (IASSCS)

The International Association for the Study of Sexuality, Culture and Society (IASSCS) was founded in 1997 in Amsterdam, with the commitment to build equity in research capacity worldwide and to develop a broad range of multidisciplinary research activities in the field of sexuality. IASSCS' mission is to strengthen both research and the capacity to conduct research, on socio-cultural dimensions of sexuality, with special attention to promoting research equity in the global south. It is committed to a broad range of research activities, including strengthening communication and promoting collaboration among researchers, policy makers, and activists/advocates. This mission is informed by the principles of social justice and human rights, with a focus on sexual rights and gender equality, as expressed in documents such as the Cairo Programme of Action, CEDAW and the UNGASS Declaration on HIV/AIDS.

IASSCS was formed in July 1997, following the hosting of its first conference in Amsterdam – “Beyond Boundaries: Sexuality across Cultures,” – which was jointly organized by the University of Amsterdam and the University of Chicago. This conference addressed a variety of research topics and issues pertaining to the social and cultural study of sexuality, and brought together scholars from the disciplines of anthropology, history, sociology, health policy and cultural and gender studies. It was noted at that time that no organization existed which provided an international forum for the interdisciplinary, social, and cross-cultural studies of sexuality.

The impetus behind the creation of IASSCS was the perceived need to address and rectify the fragmentation of sexuality studies around the globe, to provide a forum to support the field of sexuality research and training as a legitimate area of scholarship, and in the process, to promote principles of academic freedom, social justice and human rights, with a focus on sexual rights and gender equality.

Over the years, IASSCS hosted eight successful conferences: Amsterdam (1997), Manchester (1999), Melbourne (2001), Johannesburg (2003), San Francisco (2005), Lima (2007), Hanoi (2009), and Madrid (2011); which consolidated a solid network of scholars from the disciplines of anthropology, history, sociology, health policy, and the humanities, as well as from cultural and gender studies. Further, the IASSCS network has brought together scholars, researchers, policy makers and activists, with substantial participation from the global south; its last conference in Madrid gathered over 352 participants from 62 countries. These biennial conferences serve as a significant venue in the creation and strengthening of sexuality networks and coalitions across disciplines, professions and regions.

IASSCS also supports the development and dissemination of research from the global south through its post-conference trainings, the IASSCS Advanced Sexuality Studies Course program (ASSC), the IASSCS Emerging Scholars Research Fellowship Programme, and via the scholarship support provided to select conference participants. The IASSCS workshops and trainings on sexuality are increasingly in demand and competitive among junior scholars and activists, with the number of applications increasing each year.

IASSCS is an essential source of expertise on sexuality in advocacy policy debates regarding sexuality. It seeks to identify and support current sexual rights advocacy initiatives and strategies that impact state policies and programs; sustain an on-going dialogue on future action research; support campaigns advocating for the visibility of sexual minority issues and empowerment; and position itself as a reliable, accurate source of information to those working in academic, government, research and media venues who are involved in policy and advocacy work in sexuality.

IASSCS is committed to academic freedom and to building equity in sexuality research capacity worldwide via a broad range of activities. According to its mission statement, as an international convener of conferences and research training initiatives, IASSCS is dedicated to ensuring and increasing the participation of researchers, scholars, activists and advocates in efforts to:

- Strengthen research and research capacity in socio-cultural dimensions of sexuality globally, with special attention to regions and countries where this capacity is not well-developed;
- Disseminate socio-cultural sexuality research findings via its bi-annual conference and website in order to inform state, regional, and international policies regarding sexuality;
- Provide mentoring and technical assistance to junior scholars in the development of research initiatives and preparation of grant proposals, journal articles, and conference presentations;
- Promote global networking and communication among researchers, policy makers, advocates and activists in the sexuality research field.

WELCOMING REMARKS

Dear Delegates,

I am delighted to welcome you to this conference, which we have called: Sex and the Marketplace: What's love got to do with it?, organized jointly by IASSCS and the Study Group on Sexualities of the Social Sciences School of the University of Buenos Aires.

The School of Social Sciences, and the University of Buenos Aires to which it belongs, are, as you have seen, centers of teaching, research and community work. They have some special features that I would like to draw your attention to and to celebrate and also to defend publicly as if I were a soldier standing at the ramparts during a siege: it is free of charge and open to all (yes, you heard me correctly: a real university that offers free, universal access). UBA is co-administered by its professors, alumni, and students through democratic processes including elections. Neo-liberalism has devastated our country, but this university is still an open, unruly, raucous, loud and often not so neat and tidy space.

Another setting for this conference is the Bauen hotel, which closed in 2001 as a result of an economic crisis in Argentina that you probably heard about. But it was later rescued and is now managed by its own workers. The recent Argentine experience of workers taking over and reviving failing factories and other companies often provokes curiosity among visitors like yourselves, which we welcome.

Other developments here in Argentina that often draw comment include the issues that bring us together here: a country with a Pope in Rome, a Queen in Holland and a coach on a Barcelona football team also offers you simultaneously legislation requiring a minimum quota of female legislators, a democratically re-elected woman president, marriage equality for all couples, an advanced gender identity law covering trans citizens, but also one of the most restrictive abortion laws in the world. Before you ask us why we have marriage equality but not access to abortion, I will give you the answer: no one knows. We scholars, activists and citizens keep asking this question.

Argentina recovered its political democracy in 1983. Our university life also was re-energized then, and little by little inquiries about gender and sexualities have gained legitimacy. As a result, several generations of us now have grappled with these issues, which of course are not limited to our Argentinean reality. So we have discussed and explored them extensively with our peers from Latin America and around the world in an excellent and stimulating collective effort.

As in other parts of the world, health concerns opened many doors and established empirical and analytical matrices for addressing sexualities. Contraception, abortion, and HIV were and still are topics that make the subject of sexualities unavoidable for the social sciences agenda. In the academic world, several fields led to sexuality issues: women's studies, gender, feminism, and gay and lesbian studies, and recently, a body of work related to trans and intersex. All these paths are intersected by politics, social movements, epistemological and methodological conflict, geopolitics, and even aesthetics and styles of research and writing.

PALABRAS DE BIENVENIDA

Estimados/as Participantes,

Quiero darles de corazón la bienvenida a este encuentro, que hemos denominado: "Sexo y mercado: ¿qué tiene que ver el amor con todo eso?", organizado conjuntamente por IASSCS y un equipo de la Facultad de Ciencias Sociales de la Universidad de Buenos Aires, el Grupo de Estudios sobre Sexualidades.

La Facultad de Ciencias Sociales, así como la Universidad de Buenos Aires a la que pertenece, es, como habrán visto, un lugar de enseñanza, investigación y trabajo con la comunidad. Tiene algunas características para señalar y, diría yo, para festejar y proteger, como si fuéramos resistentes a una invasión: es gratuita, es de acceso libre y universal, es co-gobernada por docentes, egresadas/os, y estudiantes a través de procesos electorales.

El neo-liberalismo ha hecho estragos en nuestro país, pero no obstante ello la universidad permanece como un espacio abierto y democrático, bullicioso y a menudo poco prolijo. Otro de los espacios de este encuentro es un hotel, el Bauen, que ha sido recuperado por sus trabajadores y trabajadoras, quienes lo gestionan actualmente. Las experiencias de fábricas y otras empresas recuperadas forma parte de nuestros procesos sociales recientes que, al menos, despiertan la curiosidad de visitantes como ustedes.

Otros procesos que despiertan curiosidad refieren más a los temas que aquí nos convocan: un país con Papa en Roma, Reina en Holanda y técnico en el Barcelona, les ofrece a ustedes al mismo tiempo ley de cupo femenino, presidenta mujer elegida y re-elegida por el pueblo, matrimonio igualitario, una avanzada ley de identidad de género que permite múltiples derechos a la ciudadanía trans, y una de las legislaciones sobre aborto más restrictivas del mundo. Antes que nos pregunten por qué matrimonio igualitario sí, y aborto no, les doy la respuesta: no sabemos. También nosotros nos hacemos la pregunta desde la academia, desde el activismo, desde la ciudadanía.

Argentina recuperó su democracia política en 1983. Desde entonces, la vida universitaria también retomó sus energías, y – de a poquito – las indagaciones sobre género y sexualidades fueron cobrando fuerza, ocupando espacios, adquiriendo legitimidad. Ya hay varias generaciones de personas y de temas, que no solamente se limitan al espacio argentino sino que fueron articulándose y nutriéndose con pares de América Latina y de otras latitudes también. Una gran articulación de esfuerzos colectivos.

Como en otras partes del mundo, la preocupación por la salud abrió muchas puertas y estableció coordinadas empíricas y analíticas para abordar las sexualidades. Anticoncepción, aborto y VIH fueron y son tópicos a partir de los cuales el tema de las sexualidades se volvió ineludible de la agenda de las ciencias sociales. También se llega a las sexualidades, en el mundo académico, a partir de los estudios sobre la mujer, las mujeres, el género, el feminismo; y de los estudios gay-lésbicos, y trans, e intersex. Todos estos senderos están atravesados por la política, por movilizaciones sociales, por conflictos epistemológicos y metodológicos, por geopolítica, y hasta por estéticas y estilos de investigación y escritura.

Given the opportunity presented by this conference, our organizing committee proposed the idea of crossing gender and the marketplace, sex and capitalism, sex and commodification, sexualization or eroticization of commodities, the sexual and erotic dimensions of economic relations, the economic dimensions of sex and erotic relations. We opted to problematize heterosexuality again, to examine the political and epistemological limitations of the language of gender and rights for thinking about sexuality, and also to consider the limitations and pitfalls that queer language and post-something languages pose for us.

It is commonplace to speak about the crisis of the great narratives, but I believe that sooner or later it will be commonplace to speak about the crisis of the small narratives, too. It's true that we lost the utopia to transform the world through politics (revolutionary, communist, socialist, but also capitalist and social democratic as well). Similarly, the utopia of sexual liberation also has collapsed—we no longer believe in salvation via sex, drugs and rock-and-roll. However, love, romantic love—is there anyone in the room who wishes to denounce it? We might ask ourselves some questions about it, though: What role does that love play in constituting heteronormativity? To what extent and with what consequences did the regulatory ideal of love result in and become part of the new gender and sexual norms? How can we think about the overlap, if any, between love and social reproduction, between love and capitalism, between love and sex?

In the next few days, several hundred texts and discussions will give us clues to think about these issues, here, in Buenos Aires with people from all over the world whom we are honored and happy to welcome to into this house of learning. For that we thank the Board of IASSCS, which invited us enthusiastically to host this conference. We also welcome the workshops, seminars and parallel events organized by IASSCS, SPW, Barnard College, Catholics for a Free Choice of Mexico and CLAM.

The conference has required a great effort, the greatest of which is to communicate: we speak many different languages and, for more than one of us, English is not a lake in whose waters we swim with ease. But it is what it is, and the desire to understand and make ourselves understood will prevail over these pitfalls. And if not, at the end of the day, the rich Argentine wines, music and lovely walks along the streets of our city will solve more than one of the issues that may remain pending. Have a good time.

Desde este comité organizador, y para esta oportunidad, planteamos la idea de cruzar sexo y mercado, sexo y capitalismo, sexo y mercantilización, libidinización o erotización de las mercancías, las dimensiones sexuadas de las relaciones económicas, las dimensiones económicas de las relaciones sexuales y eróticas. En relación con ello: volver a problematizar las heterosexuales, ver las limitaciones políticas y epistemológicas del lenguaje del género y el de los derechos para pensar sexualidad, y también las limitaciones y trampas que puede tener el lenguaje queer o los lenguajes post- alguna cosa.

Ya es un lugar común hablar de la crisis de los grandes relatos, y quizá todavía no lo es, pero ya será lugar común, hablar de la crisis de los pequeños relatos: se nos cayó la utopía de transformar el mundo por vía de la política, ya sea la vía revolucionaria, la comunista, la socialista, y también la capitalista y la social-demócrata; se nos cayó la liberación sexual y se nos cayó la salvación vía sexo-drogas y rock and roll. Pero... ahí está el amor, el amor romántico, firme. Preguntas para hacerse, hay: ¿Hasta qué punto el amor es constitutivo de, por decirlo rápido, la heteronormatividad? ¿Hasta qué punto, y cómo, y con qué consecuencias, el ideal regulatorio del amor dio lugar y forma parte de las nuevas normatividades sexuales y de género? ¿Cómo podemos pensar la imbricación, si la hay, entre amor y reproducción social, entre amor y capitalismo, entre amor y sexo?

En los próximos días, unos centenares de textos y discusiones nos darán pistas para pensar estos temas, aquí, en Buenos Aires. Con gente de muchas partes del mundo que, repito, estamos orgullosos y felices de poder congregar en esta casa. Por ello agradecemos al Board de IASSCS, que nos ha invitado con fuerza y entusiasmo para que este congreso tenga lugar en la UBA. También saludamos los talleres y seminarios y actividades paralelas, organizados por IASSCS, SPW, Barnard College, las Católicas por el Derecho a Decidir de México, y el CLAM.

El congreso implica un gran esfuerzo, el mayor de los cuales es el de comunicarnos: hablamos muchas lenguas distintas y, para más de uno de nosotros y nosotras, el inglés no es un lago en cuyas aguas nademos con felicidad. Pero es lo que hay, y las ganas de entender y hacernos entender van a primar por sobre estos escollos. Y si no, al final del día, los ricos vinos argentinos, la música y los paseos por las encantadoras calles de nuestra ciudad, van a resolver más de una de las cuestiones que pudieran haber quedado pendientes. A pasarla bien.

Special Sessions (19:00 – 20:30 hrs)

Special Session 1

Room: Salón Consular 1

“Catolicadas: Una experiencia exitosa de uso de las redes sociales para promover los derechos sexuales y reproductivos”

Organized by: Catholics for the Right to Decide (Católicas por el Derecho a Decidir – Mexico)

Session Language: Spanish

PRESENTERS

- Sandra Fosado, Católicas por el Derecho a Decidir, Mexico
- Evelyn Aldaz, Católicas por el Derecho a Decidir, Mexico
- María Consuelo Mejía, Católicas por el Derecho a Decidir, Mexico

This session will introduce the cartoon series Catolicadas through audiovisual projections and presentations that explain the background, objectives and needs of creating these series; the research projects supporting the messages; the creative, production and dissemination processes; and the results of an assessment of the impact of the series. Participants will also reflect on the warm reception the series has elicited among its followers, and analyze how Catolicadas has helped to drive a critical movement of resistance against the conservative Catholic hierarchy's attempts to impose a 'single moral code' and promoted social changes in favor of a free, responsible, guilt-free sexuality, the right to decide, and sexual diversity, among other aspects.

Special Session 2

Room: Salón Consular 2

“What do we talk about when we talk about sex work?” (¿De qué hablamos cuando hablamos de trabajo sexual?)

Organized by: the Argentinean Sex Worker’s Network

Session Language: Spanish

PRESENTERS

- Elena Reynaga, Asociación de Mujeres Meretrices de Argentina (AMMAR), Argentina
- Georgina Orellano, Asociación de Mujeres Meretrices de Argentina (AMMAR), Argentina
- María Rachid, Federación Argentina LGBT, Argentina
- María Rigat-Pflaum, Universidad Nacional de Rosario, Argentina

El objetivo de esta sesión es reflexionar sobre el trabajo sexual y las consecuencias de su falta de reconocimiento. Proponemos debatir qué es lo que esconden los discursos que igualan la trata de personas al trabajo sexual, y desmitificar algunos de sus argumentos centrales.

Special Session 3

Room: Salón Consular 3

“At the Crossroads of Sexual Rights and Markets, Is there a Place for Justice?”

Organized by: Institute of Development Studies (IDS/Sussex) Sexuality Policy Watch (SPW), IASSCS

Session Language: English and Spanish/Portuguese

FACILITATING CHAIRS: Sonia Correa and Mark Blasius

PRESENTERS

- Akshay Khanna, Institute of Development Studies, United Kingdom
- Rosalind Petchesky, City University of New York (CUNY), United States of America
- Diego Sempol, Instituto de Ciencia Política (Udelar), Uruguay
- Mark Blasius, City University of New York (CUNY), United States of America

This workshop will examine the overlapping logics of markets and rights and their pitfalls to explore whether invoking “justice” is a path to disentangle their problematic knots. We will revisit critical theorizing about justice, contrasting such approaches as those of Nussbaum, Derrida, Foucault and relational justice, to reflect on the logics of markets and rights. But it will also look toward other intersections amongst sexualities, rights, markets and justice with reference to, for example, transitional justice and reparations, criminal law and retributive justice, consumers’ rights and sexual prerogatives. Starting from suggestive framing presentations, the workshop strives for maximum participation around the axes of advocacy, policymaking, and theory. Participants and presenters will collaboratively develop some analytical and strategic tools to use when sexual liberation movements call for justice.

SATELLITE MEETINGS

Sexuality and Political Change – A new Training Program

Organized by: Sexuality Policy Watch
Date: Friday, August 23rd – Tuesday, August 27th, 2013
Time: All Day
Place: Broadway Hotel, Avenida Corrientes 1173, Buenos Aires
Language: English
Registration: No Registration. Closed Meeting

Sexuality Policy Watch will be hosting a training program focusing on sexuality research. The program differs from other non-academic capacity-building models in this area, as it will not focus strictly on sexuality theory and research per se, but rather aims at exploring the various linkages and gaps that exist between sexuality theorizing and research in sexuality and social and policy change. The program is designed to examine how theory, research and policy can be connected most effectively in order to contribute to meaningful social change.

The content areas covered by course under the general heading of sexuality and sexual rights will potentially encompass a broad range of topics such as: HIV/AIDS, LGBT rights, laws and policies affecting transgender persons, abortion and contraception, sexuality education, and sex work. The course will examine challenges experienced in connecting theory and practice and translating research into “change”. It will explore exemplary cases of both successful and failed attempts to bring about social and policy change, and will provide the opportunity for people engaged in policy formation to share their experiences with respect to how sexuality research is or is not used in the front lines of struggles for human rights and social justice in relation to sexuality issues.

The Intersection of Sexuality, Sexual Rights and Sexual Health: As Addressed by Papers in Reproductive Health Matters (RHM)

Organized by: Lisa Hallgarten, Social Media and Online Editor, RHM, and consultant, Education for Choice, United Kingdom

To celebrate 10 years of activities, the Latin American Center on Sexuality and Human Rights, of the State University of Rio de Janeiro, invites to a dialogue with the participation of Latin American researchers on topics linked to sexuality and human rights from different perspectives and areas of interest: Sexual rights and politics, sexual behaviors and culture, and sexual knowledges.

Para celebrar los 10 años de actividades, el Centro Latinoamericano de Sexualidad y Derechos Humanos de la Universidad del Estado de Rio de Janeiro, invita a un diálogo con la participación de investigadores latinoamericanos sobre temas vinculados a la sexualidad y los derechos humanos desde diferentes perspectivas y áreas de interés: derechos y políticas sexuales, cultura y comportamientos sexuales, y saberes sobre la sexualidad.

CULTURAL ACTIVITIES

Exhibit Opening

Derecho a decidir. Aborto legal en la ciudad de México: Un modelo para la región (The right to choose. Legal abortion in México City: A model for the region)

Organized by: Catholics for the Right to Decide (Católicas por el Derecho a Decidir – Mexico)

Memory and Tolerance Museum, Mexico

IASSCS

Date: Thursday, August 29th

Time: 19:30 hrs

Place: Centro Cultural Borges, Viamonte 500 – Buenos Aires (see map)

This exhibition analyzes and reflects on prejudices and discriminatory attitudes toward women who terminate their pregnancies, and also highlights the irregularities of clandestine practices and the negative consequences of criminalizing women who make this decision. The exhibit revives the slogans and demands of the struggle that contributed to decriminalizing abortion in Mexico City in 2007, and includes a section on sexual education and information to prevent abortion. Within this dynamic of clarification and commitment to science and human rights, the Museum of Memory and Tolerance has joined forces with the Ford Foundation, the Federal and Mexico City Secretaries of Health, universities and civil society organizations to fill an important information gap on abortion in Mexico.

A team of volunteers will depart from the Bauen Hotel to take participants to Centro Cultural Borges, if guidance is needed.

IASSCS Cocktail Party

An IASSCS Cocktail Party will be held on Friday, August 30th, at 9:00 p.m. at the Club Español. Delegates can access the facility only with the invitation included in the conference materials.

A team of volunteers will depart from the Bauen Hotel to take participants to Club Español, if guidance is needed.

Date: Friday, August 30th

Time: 21:00 hrs

Place: Club Español, Bernardo de Irigoyen 172 (1072), Buenos Aires (see map)
